YANKEE MANAGERS

The Yankees have had twelve managers since the club was organized back in 1903. The first pilot of the Yankees was Clark Griffith, now the owner of the Washington Club. Then followed Norman (Kid) Elberfeld, George Stallings, Hal Chase, Harry Wolverton, Frank Chance, Roger Peckinpaugh, "Wild Bill" Donovan, Miller Huggins, Bob Shawkey, Joe McCarthy and Bill Dickey.

Griffith almost won the American League flag for the Yankees in 1904, losing it on the final day of the season when the great spitball pitcher, Jack Chesbro, made his never-to-be-forgotten wild pitch.

Huggins won the first pennant for the Yankees in 1921. In his twelve years as manager of the New York Club, "Hug" captured six flags (1921, 22, 23, 26, 27, 28) and three world's championships (1923, 27, 28).

This was Joe McCarthy's sixteenth season with the Yankees. He won eight pennants (1932, 36, 37, 38, 39, 41, 42 and 43) and seven world's series (1932, 36, 37, 38, 39, 41, 43). He was the only American League manager ever to win four consecutive world's championships.
